A Great Battle To-day

Naw Yonk, May 3.—A special correspondent legraps the following: At Berlin Sunday as imperial council was held to consider the situation on Saturday. Count Biamarck was present. It was agreed to notify the Versallies Government that a further limited period would be allowed for the restoration of authority and the enforcement of order, and a fulfillment of the treaty stipulations, after which Germany will take independent action to establish law and order in Parla. The dispatch will emphasize the wish of the Germans not to interfere in the internal and political affairs of Prance, but will add that such an interminable civil war, originating in revolution, and that it is blown up the garrison will be shot.

Poor Persecuted Martyrs.

An ancient but veracious story is told of Mr. FREDERIC DOUGLASS, that the famous orator was speaking in Independence Square on a certain occasion, when he made himself the burden of his discourse and harrowed the souls of his audience and harrowed the souls of his audience with many horrible incidents drawn from his experience as a slave on a Maryland plantation. There were grim anecdotes of the cruelty of the master, hideous stories of the barbarism of the overseer; ffesh-creeping illustrations of the lash and heart-sickening pictures of the thumbscrew and barrel-shirt. At length, having worked up the tragedy to its intenses point, he lowered his voice and

A recent number of the New York Tribune, which has grown more sentimental and sanguinary every day since the passage of the Kuklux bill, contains two ples which are very sad indeed. The first relates to the mistortunes of Mr. H. C. Lucz, an enterprising carpet bagger in whom there appears to have been no ruile, and whose story the Tribune abbre guile, and whose story the Tribune abbreviates as follows:

LUCE, an Iron-master, went down to North Carolina two years ago to smell ple-iron near Charlotte. The county had then Republican officery other. The county had then Republican officery other. Mr. Luce and his associates employed and paid a county and then Republican officery other. Mr. Luce and his associates employed and paid a counterate a number of both whites and blacks as wood-choppers, cearcost-barners, we will make the . Being seven miles from any church, they started a free metit go asundays, and, at the request of their more of the county of the started and blacks. The latter seemed more eager, and their strendame ones to cighty scholars, who learned strendame ones to cighty scholar, who learned strendame. These black learners ranced from three years old to clashy. Nothing was ever said of solities, and no colored part on grant of the strendame of the white school. Supply until last school to the white school. Supply until last should to the white school. Supply until last should to the white school supply until last should be supply to the started should be again voice the Rapical ticket be should be and his mouber and caughty about the should be and his mouber and caughty as the country on pain of dea the should be used. This is very sad, as we observed. The entire narrative goes to show that the people of Charlotte are all barbarians. Anything worse could hardly have help-pened in the Camible Islands. But a master stroke of the picture is the introduction of the Episcopal elegyman, who "had been a chaplain in the rebel army."

This latter proves that the rebels are no respectors of persons. They are just naturally devilies. Of course they assume they rally devilish. Of course they confusated Mr. Lucus's property, and Mr. Lucus ought to thank God that he was not reasted as-served up as a latted tenderion of carpet-begger at a robel barboone. There is a perred up as a tatted lenderlois of carpel-bagger at a rebel barbecue. There is a remedy, however, for Mr. Lucz. He must apply immediately for an set of Congress to restore him his sequestered and seques-trated iron bed. He can get a bill through to that effect, with a special clause appropri-ating half a million of dollars for his inci-dental losses, if he will divide the proceeds with the Loyal Claims Committee. The job might have been done more easily and cheaper at Raleigh had Governor Holders and his band of brothers remained there. But as the bloody-minded rebels are now in possession, Mr. Lucz must hie to Wash-ington and tell his melaucholy tale. Congress will be only too glad to hear it. The Tribune's second recital has in it a dash both of sentiment and patriotism. It relates to an unhappy Union brave, who settled in Virginis just after the war, to follow the poor but honest, trade of a postmaster. "He assures us," says the Tribune, "that no woman has visited his jamily or exchanged any kind of courtery him a friendly call but the clergyman whose services his family attends; and he whose services his family attends; and he only when the evening is very dark, so that no one outside can see him." It does not seem never so remotely to cross the inney of the Tribune that this man's wife may have been a show, or that his children may have had the seven year tich. It is possible that it was feas. The Varginians are mighty skittish of fleas. Or, perhaps, the one-armed hero possessed a vicious dog that trightened the neighbors. The conduct of the clergyman would be pronounced a model of Christian valor but for the vague suspicion that crosses our ungenerous fancy. He only called "when it was crey dark,"—the Tribune italicizes the adverb—and. "when no one outside e-ould see him." Could there have been any improper intimacy between this outside could see him." Could there have been any improper intimacy between this careful divine and the soldier's wife that isolated the latter from the companionship of her sex and caused the former to select such equivocal periods of visitation? On this head we desire instruction.

Serioualy, is it possible for such stuff as the foregoing to pass muster with sensible people? If the two cases quoted are not wholly anotherwhalk, there are controlled. wholly apochryphal, they are entirely comprehensible. Luck must have been an incendiary. The postmaster and his family must be disagreeable folks. The Southern temper, if it is anything, is eminently genial. Its fault hee in its easy and heedless familiarity. It is too much given to loose neighborly ways and thrittless hospitality, and has a most embarrassing and absurd provincial habit of picking up poor dogs, provided they be not vicious. A little good nature goes a long way in the South, and, to any one acquainted with the habits of the population, the experience of Mr. Luck and the Virginia postmaster are Mr. Lucz and the Virginia postma

Mr. Lucus and the Virginia postmaster are of unequivocal significance. But, even if they were not, are we to correct such social complaints by act of Congress, and legislate the unwilling households of the country into close intercourse with the lovely and the lonely of every degree and sort? Is that the way to establish domestic peace and brotherly feeling? Are we to go on perpetually with this wretched crimination, based on individual incitement which produces hostile legislation. ment which produces hostile legislation, which, in its turn, produces resistance, the of gnorance and passion at call of the policy of eternal hate.

Just as imperialism lies at the bottom of the civil philosophy taught and carried out by the Radical politicians does communism lie at the bottom of the creed of the Radical humanitarians. We find in Mr. Monron a conspirator to overturn our system of government. We find in Mr. plantation. There were grim anecdotes of the crucity of the master, hideous stories of the barbarism of the overseer; ficah-creeping illustrations of the isah and heart-sickening pictures of the thumb-screw and barrel-shirt. At length, having worked up the tragedy to its intensest point, he lowered his voice and in deep, impressive tones said, "and after all this, my friends, what mustyou think of the humble individual who has the honor to stand before you?" To which a clear Irish voice sang out from the crowd below "That ye must he' been a h—l of a bad nigger."

Something of this judgment, minus the profamity, must occur to the candid reader when he peruses the accounts of the unwill put these measures through next winter, and if he does not Mr. SUMNER can do it. In the mean time let Mr. H. C. Luce and the ope-armed Virginia postmaster be of good cheer. There are better times ahead for vermin.

The New York Evening Mail says it does not appear what Paris now wants. But this is a mistake. What Paris now wants, as we have already intimated, is s liberal and judiciously-distributed supply of grape-shot and cannister.

"There is little probability," says the Albany Evening Journal, "that we shall ever abandon our ground." Very well. Keep your ground if you will. All we ask of you is that you will get under it as soon as you possibly can.

Capital all Confusion and Cro A Canvass of the Field—Mc-Croery, King, Leslie and Proctor Knott.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

FRANKFORT, May 3, 1871.

The Louisville and Lexington trains to-day were crowded with delegates, and their arrival has sharpened the contest for office. The city is crowded with patriots, eager to do the State service at a liberal salary. Among the great guns, politically, here, are Hon-James B. Beck, General William Preston, Hon. John M. Rice, J. Proctor Knott, John Young Brown, General Lucius Desha, Governor Magoffin and many others of lesser note. The chances of this or that candidate are discussed in general, and he associate of each sapinate endeavors to impress his hearer that his friend only has the ghost of a chance. The masses are seal-out in promoting the claims of their favorites, but there are others—only a few—experienced politicians and men of reflection, who have ondence of the Courier-Jon manufactors the resolutions which manufacts the Presidential contest for 1873.

INFIER DIFFORTANCE is not only local, but national. Our brethren in the North swait with the deepest solicitade the action of this convention, together with the plaiform which embodies our principles and declares our policy. Indeed, upon our discreet and prudent action the result of the Presidential election may turn. There are men of wisdom here who comprehend the situation, and, as all seem ready to escribe their own elemented opinions for a common cause and for the general good, it would be uncharitable to doubt that wisdom and patiotism will govern our councils, and that the proceed-lot the general good, it would be uncharitable to doubt that wisdom and patietism will govers our connells, and that the proceedings will justify the expectations of those who love their party next to their country. There is every reason to anticipate prompt and harmomous action.

There will be a meeting of the most prominent men to-night, when the platform will be under consideration, If any results are reached I will advise you by telegraph.

They are in a measure subsiding to the sciection for the first position, which will, for them. They are in a measure subsiding to the sciection for the first position, which will, for them. The contest for the nomination is decidedly mixed, and not even Solomon with all his wisdom, if he were a member of this convertion, could name the winner. "The King's name is a tower of strength," it is said, and this is in a manner applicable to the position of Governor Leslie. Of those most prominent it is believed he has the lead. He will receive a much larger vote in the early believe to the content of the foreign and the scientific that the will out it will be the scientific the scientific that the most intended to the scientific that the will out it will be scientificated, who confidently assert that he will out it will be scientificated the scientific that the most in

The controlliciony statements of the wishes of ex Senstor McCreery in respect to the nomination rather mystifies the members of the convention, and is a source of decided trouble to every aspirant for Governor. I telegraphed you that it was reported that one member of the Daviess county delegation was authorized by McCreery to decline a nomination if tendered. It is now said that the does not seek it was if year if year in year in year in the does not seek it was if year in year in year in the does not seek it was if year in year. be does not seek it, yet, if unanimously offered, his duty to his party would compel

THE MAN OF DULUTH.

Next to McCreary I imagine that Proctor Knott (which his remark was Duluth) is most formidable as a compromise candidate. He is a man of intellect and culture, a scholar and a quiet, unassuming gentleman. He ranked with the highest in Cougress, and his retirement from that body was accompanied with uniform expressions of regret. He impresses all who meet him most favorably. It is thought by no means impossible that he may become our standard-bearer.

There are others who will be voted for, including Col. Thos. L. Jones, Judge G. W. Craddock, Hon. R. M. Spalding, Maj. Geo. W. Williams, all good men but less conspicuous than those above referred to. Those grettenen, too, are strongly pressed, but as yet, they remain in the background. Hon. Isaac Caldwell, of Louisville, has been spoken of, but it would be improper to term hims a candidate for he is not, and were the some formal than the could only take it as saccified that it would be improper to term hims a candidate for he is not, and were the some formal than the could only take it as ascifice that it would be suproper for bim to make. LIEUTERANT GOVERNOR.

This office is quite desirable to those who can afford to wait for political preferment. It is in the line of promotion, and hence it is sought after by a half a score of persons in person or through their friends. The principal candidates are Judge Ed. W. Turner, of Madison; James L. Allen, of Boyle; Robert Simmons, Cowington; Sam L. Gelger, Jefferson county; Thomas W. Varnum, of Lincoln: Emory Whittaker, Mason county, and the names of Colonel Thomas L. Jones and James G. Carlisle, of the Covington district, have been used in that coanaction. One is as likely to get it as the other.

OPERE OFFICES.

There is nobody, I believe, that has the temerity to put himself up against "Dick" Tate for Treasurer. If there is, the convention will put him down. Tate was born for this office, and he is expected to continue therein for the balance of his natural life, and make it a bequest to one of he children.

The very full and detailed account of the German celebration which we published yesterday was exceedingly correct and complete, and gave general suisfaction. But it was impossible to get every object in the procession, which warmles and miles long, and contained an innumerable variety and our glomeration of things. It is surpri-ing that our reporters missed so little as they, did. One of the principal features of the procession, nowever, was omitted. Charlie Runfer was represented by a whole hotel in full operation. There was kitchen, dintar-room and good eating. The choicest estables were being cocked and served as his was piece of enterin the arrangements, accommodations and management of his hotel.

The Maciler Exhibition.

Last evening at Weisiger Hall the public of Mors. and Madams Mucler repeated the exhibition, consisting of the higher class of fancy dances, which they had previously given at the Masonic Temple, on the lither class of fancy dances, which they had previously given at the Masonic Temple, on the lither class of fancy dances, which they had previously given at the Masonic Temple, on the lither of February. The hall was completely filled with an audience, of which even professional artistes might be prowdard there was not one of the numerous and cultivated spectators but had every reason to be satisfied, both wifth the acquirements of the pupils and the successful character of the entire of play. There was notining of a finny or preciseltous unture—all was solid and substantial, and the result manifestly of conscientions work and undoubled talent upon the part of the lady and gealtenan who luparted the instruction.
